COMMUNICATED.

OBITUARY NOTICE.

Died, on Saturday, the 21st of March, at his house in Birmingham, NATHANIEL BEDFORD, M. D. in his 62d year.

The subject of this obituary notice, was a gentleman of distinguished talents and of great professional acquirements. An Englishman by birth, he received a regular medical education in his native country. After going thro' the usual course, he attended the hospitals in London, for the purpose of improving himself in the different branches of his profession, particularly in surgery. After the war (which ended in our independence,) broke out, he was appointed a surgeon's mate, on board of one of the English vessels, and after the surrender of Charleston, he had it in his power, and with the benevolence which has always marked his character, he exercised with great activity that power, of befriending and relieving the miseries of the American prisoners; he there contracted intimacies with some continental officers that lasted thro' life. At the close of the war, he returned to England, and with professional views made the tour of France and the Low Countries. He then determined to emigrate to America, whose rising greatness, he had the sagacity to foresee, from the transient view he had of it, while in the English service. On his arrival in Philadelphia, his early friend Dr. Rush advised him to fix himself in Pittsburgh; to this place he came, when it was a mere Indian village, and here he continued with distinguished professional reputation, and eminent usefulness, until within a few years, when he retired to the town of Birmingham, of which he was the founder.

Doctor Bedford has the honor of being among the first of the men of science who crossed the Allegheny mountains for the purpose of making an establishment; and the respect which Dr. Rush avowedly paid to his opinions, does not form a trifling portion of reputation—as a man few possessed more of the social virtues. Those in the circle of his acquaintance, know it is not the common cant of unmeaning eulogy when we assert, that his character was strongly marked (probably imprudently so for his own interest) by benevolence and philanthrophy.

"THE PITTSBURGH UNION SOCIETY,"

FOR the promotion of Sabbath schools, having met with great encouragement and success in the prosecution of their original design; and finding an opportunity presented for extending the plan of the institution so as to embrace a free school, to be kept open at all times, for the education of the poor, or such a number of them as it shall be thought proper or convenient to admit, have thought proper to make another call upon the liberality of a Christian public.

They are anxious if possible, to procure funds for erecting a house, in Pittsburgh, on a lot offered by colonel O'Hara, in which the Sabbath school may be accommodated on the Lord's day, and a free school kept open the remainder of the week. They are confident that with reasonable contributions, from those who are blessed with the means of giving, this object may be accomplished. And who would not give a small portion of his substance for the education of the unfortunate poor? Who can withhold compassion and assistance from bereaved and helpless children? May they not hope for the Divine blessing upon their charities?—Among the children of this city there are hundreds who may be forever lost and undone for the want of early instruction. To turn them from the paths of idleness and vice, and prepare them for usefulness here, and happiness hereafter, is an object worthy the encouragement of every good citizen. Under these considerations, the Pittsburgh Union Society, have agreed to submit to the public, proposals for the purpose of erecting a school house, and for supporting a free school: and to solicit their signatures with such sums in donations or annual payments as their own generosity may dictate.

☞Persons disposed to aid in this laudable object are requested to call on JOHN P. SKELTON, President of the Society, MARK STACKHOUSE, Vice President, or JAMES BELDEN, Secretary, who are appointed to receive donations and subscriptions.

☞The first quarterly meeting of the "Pittsburgh Union Society for the promotion of Sabbath Schools," will be held at the Baptist Meeting House, on Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock, P. M.—A punctual and general attendance of the members is requested.

JAMES BELDEN, Secretary.

FROM THE PHILADELPHIA GAZETTE.

PHILADELPHIA & PITTSBURGH TRANSPORTING COMPANY.

The public will no doubt learn with satisfaction the operations of "THE PHILADELPHIA & PITTSBURGH TRANSPORTING COMPANY" will be commenced on the first day of April next. Two waggons will on and after that day start daily from the Cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and by a change of horses every ten miles, and travelling day and night, when the roads will admit, will perform the route in ten days, comprising a distance of 300 miles. It is not expected that this first effort made in the United States, to effect an economical and expeditious mode of inland transportation, will be productive of any important diminution in the price of carriage, inasmuch as the novelty of the measure & the badness of the roads, where they are not yet turnpiked, have obliged the managers to make contracts upon terms less favourable than succeeding years will present, when the business shall be understood by the waggon masters, and when the turnpike shall be completed. It may however be regarded as the commencement of a great system of inland transportation, which when fairly tested by experiment will be found so far superior to the common mode of economy and expedition, that we doubt not but that in a few years the great body of team owners between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh will unite themselves into Companies upon the plan pursued by the stage proprietors and establish as many lines of waggons as the trade will employ. The attainment of this great object was the end for which the present Company was established. A capital of near forty thousand dollars has been subscribed by a class of enterprizing and public spirited citizens in town and country, most of whom were influenced solely by a desire to promote the cause of trade, and whether a profit result or not, is with them a matter of no consideration, provided they can see the accomplishment of their views.

The plan of transportation adopted by this Company is as follows: upwards of forty waggons have been constructed upon a commodious and improved plan, at the expence of the Company: contracts have been made with individuals residing at different places on the route, to haul the same, within a specified number of hours, between certain given points, with their own horses, for which they are to receive a stipulated compensation per annum. At present the sections extending from Carlisle to Shippensburg, 21 miles; from the top of Sideling hill to a point 10 miles east of Bedford 16 miles, and from the top of the Allegheny to Dennisons, 14 miles, amounting in the whole to 51 miles, are not contracted for; but it is the intention of the managers, in case an agent, who is now employed for the purpose on the route, should not find contractors in time for those portions of the road, to hire horses in the city and send them out to their respective stations.

In the success of this enterprize the whole community is interested. Its ultimate influence upon the trade of Philadelphia, and its future commercial prosperity will be of vast extent. It is the first step towards a gradual though sure reduction of the expense of carriage between Philadelphia and the Western country; and there can be no doubt that when the turnpike shall be completed, the journey to Pittsburgh will be performed in 8 days. Towners, merchants and all others that reside on the great western road through Pennsylvania, who are actuated by feelings of public spirit, this exertion to approximate them nearer to the seat of foreign commerce, and to afford them a cheaper conveyance for their commodities foreign as well as domestic than they have heretofore enjoyed, must be of so much moment, as to entitle their good wishes and hearty cooperation in promoting the interests of the company. From the Legislature a favorable protection is expected in the granting a charter, for which application has been made, and upon the whole we have a fair right to conclude that notwithstanding the prejudices of some and the selfish motives of a few, the public feeling is in favor of the establishment of these lines of waggons considered as it ought to be, as an experiment undertaken for the public good.

Editors of Papers in this city and country who are favorable to the improvement of internal trade, are solicited to publish this article.

SALEM, March 10.

Drowned, during the late freshet, in Shawbeen river, Andover, as they were attempting to pass the causeway in a chaise, Mr. Herbert Richardson, jun. of Lynnfield, and Miss Charlotte Palmer, of Londonderry. These lovers were in the bloom of youth, and were on the point of marriage. The bodies have since been found, conveyed to Lynnfield, and both interred in one grave.

Milledgeville (Geo.) March 3.—The murder of Grantham's family by the Indians, mentioned in our last paper, we have heard thus described, by a gentleman from the frontier, of strict veracity: The father and son, a young man grown, had been from home, and on returning found their residence surrounded by Indians, who after plundering the house, burnt it, with the three youngest children and then cut to pieces the rest of the family. Having discovered the old man and his son, who witnessed at some distance the horrid massacre of their relatives, the savages pursued them; the white men with difficulty effected their escape, by taking shelter in a swamp where they remained some time concealed.—Hard pressed in his retreat, young Grantham saved his life by killing two of the Indians who closely pursued him.

We expect to hear very soon of an attack on the Mickasukee Indians, as we are informed the army will move first against them.

Tip Top Toleration. A Member of the Assembly of New-York, (Mr. MEIGS) in a late debate, said, "The Constitution of this (N. Y.) State, guarantees equally the religion of all. The Jew who believes the blessed Saviour an impostor;—the Egyptian who worships a crocodile or an onion;—the Pagan who worships the sun;—the Indian who pays divine honors to stocks and stones;—the worshipper of Odin;—the Chinese or the Mahometans."

From the Boston Centinel.

SWEDEN.—The young Baron DE STAEL HOLSTEIN is said to be at the head of a powerful opposition party in Sweden.

☞If this be true it must be an opposition to the succession of BERNADOTTE to the crown of Sweden, on the death of CHARLES XIIIth, the present nominal king, who has passed his 70th year; and not improbably in favor of the young Swedish Prince GUSTAVUS, (an intimate of the Baron DE STAEL) who is now of kingly age, who looks forward, it is said, to the crown, and who calculates on the support of his aunt the Empress of Russia. Sweden has always been a hotbed in which shoots of revolution have flourished; and the struggles between her kings and nobles have been obstinate and bloody. During a great part of the last century, the Senate of Sweden exercised the real sovereignty of the kingdom. In 1772, Gustavus IIId. restored the kingly powers But in 1792 he was assassinated; when his brother, the Duke of Sudermania (now nominal king) was appointed regent during the minority of the young king, Gustavus XIth. The latter, owing to the intrigue of the French with his uncle was obliged to fly to Germany, where he has resided ever since, excepting a temporary abode in Switzerland. The uncle regent then seized upon the throne, with the title of CHARLES XIIIth and the States declared him and his succesors heirs to it, to the exclusion of Gustavus and his family. The crown prince of CHARLES XIIIth having deceased (it was said at the time of poison) BERNADOTTE (one of Buonaparte's Marshals) elected by the States as successor to the throne, & in 1811, the King, on account of bad health, appointed him Regent of Sweden.—Times have since changed; and it appears very probably that Sweden is nearly ripe for another revolution in favor of native legitimacy.

DR. CHALMERS ON WAR.

"One great obstacle to the extinction of war, is the way in which the heart of man is carried off from its barbarities and its horrors, by the splendor of its deceitful accompaniments. There is a feeling of the sublime in contemplating the shock of armies, just as there is in contemplating the devouring energy of a tempest; and this so elevates and engrosses the whole man, that his eye is blind to the tears of bereaved parents, and his ear is deaf to the piteous moan of the dying, and the shriek of desolate families. There is a gracefullness in the picture of a youthful warrior burning for distinction in the field, and lured by this generous aspiration to the deepest of the animated throng, where, in the fell work of death, the opposing sons of valor struggle for a remembrance and a name; and this side of the picture is so much the exclusive object of our regard, as to disguise from our views the mangled carcases of the fallen, and the writhing agonies of the hundreds, and the hundreds more, who have been laid on the cold ground, where they are left to languish and to die.—There is no eye pities them! There no gentle hand is present to ease their dying posture or bind up their wounds, which in the maddening fury of the combat, have been given and received by the children of the common father!—There death spreads its pale ensigns over every countenance, and when night comes on, and darkness surround them, how many a despairing wretch must take up with the bloody field as the untended bed of his last sufferings, without one friend to bear the message of tenderness to his distant home without one companion to close his eyes!

I avow it——On every side of me, I see causes at work which go to spread a most delusive colouring over war, and to remove its shocking barbarities to the back ground of our contemplations altogether. I see it in the history, which tells me of the superb appearance of the troops and the brilliancy of their successive charges—I see it in the poetry which lends the magic of its numbers to the narrative of blood, and transports its many admirers, as by its images and its figures, and its nodding plumes of chivalry, it throws its treacherous embellishments over a scene of legalized slaughter. I see it in the music which represents the progress of the battle, and where, after being inspired by the trumpet notes of preparation, the whole beauty and tenderness of a drawing room are seen to bend over the sentimental entertainment; nor do we hear the utterance of a single sigh to interrupt the death-tones of the thickening contest and the moans of the wounded men, as they fade away upon the ear, & sink into lifeless silence!—all, all goes to prove what strange and half-sighted creatures we are. Were it not so, war could never have been seen in any other aspect than that of unmingled hatefulness, and I can look to nothing but the progress of christian sentiment upon earth, to arrest the strong current of its popular and prevailing partiality for war. Then only will an imperious sense of duty, lay the check of severe principle, on all the subordinate tastes and faculties of our nature. Then will glory be reduced to its right estimate—and the wakeful benevolence of the gospel chasing away every spell, will be turned by the treachery of no delusions whatever from its simple but sublime enterprizes, for the good of the species. Then will truth and quietness be ushered into the world; and war, cruel, atrocious, unrelenting war, will be stript of its mantle and its bewildering fascinations.

LANCASTER JUDGES ACQUITTED.

Judge Franklin and his associates have been acquitted of the charges preferred against them. The votes were on the first article of impeachment 14 against 16—on the second 7 against 23.

POPULAR FEELING AGAINST A PRISONER.

In turning over the leaves of the pamphlet report of John Tiernan's trial, we notice a remark on this subject by Mr. Biddle, who prosecuted for the commonwealth which strikes us as very just.

A great deal has been said on the subject of the popular feeling which exists on the subject of this murder, and apprehensions had just been expressed, that they would ensure the conviction of the prisoner, whether he be guilty or not. Mr. Biddle, said, that unless he had mistaken the cool and sober character of his countrymen, he very much questioned whether there was any cause for alarm on this head. So far as his own observation and reflection on the subject had gone, there rather appeared to him to exist on occasions of popular feeling, a kind of re-action in the minds of some of the jury—a disposition to distrust almost in the anxiety and agitation created by a feeling of novel and awful responsibility, their own senses, and to apprehend that the most obvious reflections of their own minds, might be mixed up with some degree of prejudice, and that they might thus insensibly slide into a violation of the solemn oaths under which their consciences laboured. While, therefore, the timid are alarmed, a prisoner in this situation, has moreover, every claim to the sympathy of the generous; and when it is remembered that a favorable sentiment floating vaguely in the mind of a single juryman, may make him faulter and think that his safest course is to acquit; it becomes very questionable whether a prisoner, (particularly if his counsel possess ingenuity and eloquence) is more likely to suffer or to be benefited by the existence of a clamour against him.

Mr Biddle thought, too, that he had observed among our citizens an honest reverence for the administration of justice, which secured their deliberations from the intrusion of popular prejudice. Twelve men under the sanction of an oath, and solemnly set apart to pass sentence upon the life of a fellow citizen, feel some little pride of independence, and official importance, in exercising their unbiassed judgements upon the evidence laid before them, divested of the popular rumours and exaggerations which are current out of doors.

Part of Dupont's powder works, near Wilmington, Del. exploded on the 19th inst. Between twenty and thirty persons were killed, and several badly wounded.

Cobbett's Register.—In a letter to the Editors of the Petersburgh Intelligencer, Mr. Cobbett has expressed his determination to discontinue the publication of his Register in this country, and to wind up his affairs here immediately. In fact the Register has already been suspended several weeks, and we presume Mr. C. intends shortly to leave the United States.

From the Nat. Intelligencer—Extra of Saturday March 21.

Editors' Correspondence.

MILLEDGEVILLE, 11th March.

GENTLEMEN—A report has this morning reached us, which we fear may be true, to this purport: General Gaines, with a few others, set off some time last month from Fort Early to descend the river (Flint) to Fort Scott The report is, that the boat was staved on the 25th ult. Major Wright, (aid to General Gaines and son of Governor Wright) with others, said to be drowned. General Gaines was seen to reach the shore (by a man who gained the opposite side, and brings the report) but has not since been heard of and is thought to have fallen into the hands of the hostile Indians. Such is the rumor.—we pray God it may not be true, but fear it is so.

Old Revolutionary Soldiers and Sailors.

THE act for the relief of the officers, soldiers, seamen and marines of the revolutionary Army and Navy, has passed both Houses of Congress.

It provides, that every surviving officer, person of the staff, non-commissioned officer, soldier, musician, seaman or marine, of the revolutionary Army, or Navy, who was in service at the close of the war of the revolution, or who served for the term of nine months at any period of that war, on the continental establishment; and who is, or hereafter by reason of his reduced circumstances in life, shall be in need of assistance from his country for support—if an officer, he shall receive TWENTY dollars a month during life, and if serving in any subordinate capacity, shall receive EIGHT dollars a month, during life.

To substantiate a claim to this bounty, every claimant must testify on oath before the U. S. District Judge, or before any Judge, or Court of Record, of the county or State, in which he resides—that he belonged to the Army or Navy; and set forth the company, regiment, line, name of vessel, and service in which he was employed—the time he entered the service, and the time and manner of leaving; and give any other evidence he can adduce. If this evidence is satisfactory, the Judge will certify the same to the Secretary of War, and the claimant will be placed immediately on the pension list; and receive his pension in the State he resides in. Evidence of indigence will not be required on oath, but other evidence will be.

The Bill to incorporate the City of Lancaster, has passed both houses of the Legislature, and only wants the signature of the Governor to become a law.

CONGRESS.

On the 17th inst. the house of Representatives of the United States received a Message from the President covering a report from Mr, ADAMS, the Secretary of State, upon the subject of our relations with Spain. The report, accompanied by copies of the letters which have passed between our government and the Spanish minister, is said to present a complete view of the state of our relations with Spain up to this date. The correspondence is very voluminous, and is concluded by a letter from Mr. Adams to Don Louis de Onis, dated the 12th of March instant. By this it appears that Spain had some time since applied to Great Britain to become a mediator between her and us, to which Great Britain assented, provided, both parties should unite in the request. But the proposition has not been acceded to on the part of our government. The letter concludes with a refusal on the part of the United States to take any further measures than those already provided by law, for preventing armaments hostile to Spain within the territories of the United States.

SLAVE TRADE.

Measures have commenced in Spain for the gradual abolition of the Slave Trade. A decree has passed prohibiting the trade in slaves on the coast of Africa north of the equator under severe penalties, and restricting the duration of it south of the line to two years and five months, from the date of the decree—Dec. 1817.

A negro man, aged about 130 years, died lately in the family of William M'Kim, Richmond, Virginia.

Last night a man by the name of Stewart, his wife, and a man named Hare, were arrested on suspicion of being accessaries to the late Robbery of the Mail. Thirteen hundred dollars were found in the privy of the house in which they lived.—Hare is a brotner to the two Hares, who have been apprehended at Baltimore.—Thus, in the short space of a week, have the principals & accomplices of this daring robbery, fallen into the hands ofjustice

Phil. Gaz.

The committee appointed to investigate the official conduct of Wm. Findlay, as treasurer of this state, have at length made report, which they conclude as follows:

"The committee therefore conclude, that the conduct of the late state treasurer, in his official capacity, has been not only faithful but meritorious and beneficial to the state, and entitles him to the thanks and gratitude of his fellow-citizens. They therefore recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the committee be discharged from all further consideration of the subject.',

The resolution was adopted by the house —Yeas 53, Nays 32. Greensbg. Gaz.

FOREIGN ARTICLES.

FROM LATE LONDON PAPERS.

LONDON, Jan. 26.

We have received two Flanders Mails; one last night, and the other this morning. An article from Berlin mentions a singularly rigorous punishment inflicted upon a Prussian Officer and his second, for fighting a duel. The former has been sentenced to nine years imprisonment, and the latter to four. The practice of duelling is one of those evils of modern society which it is painful to witness, and yet difficult to remove, It cannot be denied, that if an adequate remedy could be devised, the happiness of private life would be promoted.—It is melancholy to observe, how frequently existence is sported with for the silliest causes. An attempt was made, in the reign of Louis XIV. to abolish this practice, by a number of French Marshals, and others, who agreed to institute a Court of Honour, where such offences as are now atoned for by meeting an antagonist, should be decided by a different process. The members composing this Court were all men of approved gallantry and courage, so that no imputation could be fixed upon their motives; but though thus countenanced, and supported by the enlightened Fenelon, no permanently beneficial consequences resulted.

The model of the celebrated monument erected at Moscow by the Emperor of Russia, composed of the cannon left by Bonaparte on his flight from Russia, (consisting of 160 pieces) has been presented to the Commander in Chief. His Royal Highness has placed this unique and beautiful object in the vestibule of his chateau at atlands. It is the production of an Italian Artist, and the material is the finest alabaster.

The Bonaparte family.—LUCIEN BONAPARTE continues to reside at Rome. JOSEPH is in America LOUIS at Rome. JEROME in Austria. The mother and sisters of these reside at Rome, and vicinity. Prince EUGENE in Bavaria.

French Flags.—The French Government has divided France into five Maratime Districts—and assigned a particular flag to each: as well as a flag for vessels belonging to its West and East India Colonies, and the African Colony. Vessels are also allowed to have private signals. All their colors are to be hoisted when they approach a French port, and in port on Sundays, holidays, etc. They are always to hoist the general French flag with their other colours—the District Flag at the maintop-gallant mast head, the private signal at the next mast-head in rank, and the French Flag at the stern.

By the treaty lately concluded by Great Britain and Spain, the former pays the sum of £400,000 sterling, as full compensation for any losses consequent upon the abolition of the slave trade.

On this subject the Globe observes,—"By this act, the English government has virtually taken part with Ferdinand against the Patriots of South America, and by this purchase granted him a subsidy of £400,000 to enable him to reduce them to subjection."

A million sterling has been offered to France for a similar purpose.

A new way of applauding a public Speaker.—At a late public meeting, one of the orators addressed the assembly as follows:—"My dear brethren, it has been the usual custom for an audience to testify their approbation of the Speaker by clapping of hands; but I beg to recommend for your adoption a new method of clapping, less tumultuous, and much more pleasing, when you leave this place, clap your hands into your pockets, and clap your money into the plate to receive it, and the Lord give it his blessing." This had the desired effect.

Liv. Mer.

Of all the trials of life, few are harder to bear, than that of being forsaken of one's friends in time of need. It was this that occasioned the most plaintive exclamations of afflicted Job:—"All my friends have forsaken me."

The like complaint was made by Dean Swift, in his old age and infirmities.

"Deaf, giddy, helpless, left alone,
To all my friends a burden grown."

The Dean was, however, in even his best days, near as remarkable for moroseness as Job was for patience; and, at last his ever-snarling ferociousness became so intolerable that scarcely a single friend could abide his presence.—Con. Cour.

CAJIUT OIL

An East India cure for the Rheumatism.

The essential Oil of the Cajiput Tree a medicine universally esteemed among the East Indians as a safe and certain cure for the Rheumatism, also, for bruises, sprains, fresh cuts, &c. &c.

THE above valuable medicine has but lately been introduced into Europe, in consequence of the tree from which it is produced, yielding its essential oil but in small quantities, and this chiefly monopolized by the government, owing to the great virtue it was found to possess in the cure of the rheumatisms, a disease which the people of that country are particularly subject to: the proprietor, however, receiving information of its virtues in a letter from his friend Mr. Jenkins, of the honorable East India company, has procured through him, at considerable expense, a regular supply, and wishing to extend the benefit as well to the poor as to the rich, has divided the original packages and put it up in bottles made for the purpose, with directions round each bottle, signed in the proprietors own hand writing.
